

IT TAKES A VILLAGE TO RAISE A CHILD

The Big Think is a values-based learning programme that empowers children to create meaningful relationships with themselves, others and the world around them.

We view education as a system of closely connected parts that need to constantly interact together. To this end, we embrace all staff, children, parents and the wider community in our programmes.

WHY WE DO IT

The world is in desperate need of a learning revolution. Too many schools are stuck in a standardised routine and struggle to create the conditions in which children's natural abilities and creativity can flourish. We create opportunities for children to develop this agency in order to better navigate and impact the world around them.

WHAT WE DO

We equip schools with life-enriching tools that support children's personal growth and sense of self. We do this using a values-based programme that promotes the expansion of social and emotional development, which in turn enhances cognitive growth and mental processing.

With TBT, children aged 5 to 11 learn to validate and reflect on their emotions and social interactions within a global context. From using critical integrity to spot fake news to spreading kindness during the Coronavirus global pandemic, The Big Think develops 21st-century skills for life.

OUR IMPACT

For Children, TBT is the opportunity to find their voice and explore potential

For Parents, TBT is a safe space to develop values-literate children

For Schools, TBT is a values-based programme that supports holistic development

For Workplaces, TBT is the foundation for diverse and inclusive organisations

For Society, TBT is the catalyst for a more enlightened world

CONTACT US

Do you have a question or comment? The Big Think team is here to help. contact@the-big-think.org